

■ TU Webinar

TU Convenes Live Webinar on Degree Conversion Programme

■ NMCN

NMCN Accreditation team commends Trinity University

■ ICAN

ICAN Accredits Trinity University's Accounting Degree Programme

■ NUC

NUC team gives healthy report for TU's Health Information Management programme

3rd Edition - Nov. 10, 2023.

TU CONVENES LIVE WEBINAR ON DEGREE CONVERSION PROGRAMME

In its bid to enlighten prospects on the essence and modalities of its newly introduced degree conversion programmes, Trinity University has on October 26 convened the first in the series of live webinars to promote the idea of Conversion from HND/ACA/ACIB/ACIS to degree qualifications to the public and provide clarifications, as may be necessary.

Speaking at the maiden edition of the Webinar, Dr. Bode Oloruntoba, Director, TU Consult, said this was a way to solve a societal issue and to assist those concerned with moving on in career and academics.

He pointed out that the programme would be run as full time and that classes would commence in January 2024, every Saturday and Sunday, across six semesters. Making further analysis, Dr. Oloruntoba remarked that the six- semester period would allow each student earn sufficient credit units to qualify for a standard degree, which would be reflected in the transcripts and make the graduates eligible for Master's academic studies anywhere in the world.

The Director said that the fees were reasonable and that the location of the University in Lagos makes it ideal for those living or working in Lagos and the environs.

Group Photograph of TU Management, led by the Vice-Chancellor, Prof C O O Kolawole (middle, in glasses) and NMCN team, led by Prof. Adesola Ogunfowokan (in pink, beside the VC)

NMCN ACCREDITATION TEAM COMMENDS TRINITY UNIVERSITY

The Nursing and Midwifery Council of Nigeria (NMCN)'s team on accreditation visit has commended Trinity University for the quality of its Nursing Science programme. Making the remark at its exit briefing after a three-day personnel and resource assessment, the leader of the delegation, Professor Adesola Ogunfowokan, said: "Looking at the Faculty of Nursing, you have done well."

The team drew the conclusion after reviewing the curriculum, staff compliment, laboratories, classrooms, library, facilities, hostel accommodation, relationships with other health institutions guided by executed MOU's and students' activities in the faculty.

However, the team also pointed out that while what they had seen was a good starting point for the University, there were areas to improve on. Such areas include the need to have professors in the faculty, to have Nursing Education as a department, to review the present curriculum having run it for five years now, to reduce the workload of the 200 level students, to make the laboratories more professionally structured and complimented, to add more numbers to the models and specimens, to build up faculty library in place, to make the hostel accommodation more supportive for the students, to provide fire proof cabinet in the Dean's office and to provide a car attached to the office of the Dean.

Responding, the acting Vice Chancellor, Professor Clement Olusegun Olaniran Kolawole, appreciated the team for such a comprehensive report. He reassured the team that every point they had raised would be duly attended to.

NUC TEAM GIVES HEALTHY REPORT FOR TU'S HEALTH INFORMATION MANAGEMENT PROGRAMME

A team from the National Universities Commission (NUC), led by Professor Isoken Toto Aighewi, which visited Trinity University on October 20, 2023, on resource inspection, in preparation for the commencement of the Health Information Management programme, has given the University a positive assessment in its preliminary exit briefing to the University's management.

The team noted that the University had existing basis with which to build on. This included having allied health programmes in place, having clear designated classrooms with both electronic and traditional boards, computer systems, functional e-library and also having MOU with other health institutions around.

On the flip side, however, the visiting team observed that the number of books in the library needed to increase and that safety sign-posts were required at some points in the premises, among areas to address.

Elated and looking straight at the visiting professor, the acting Vice Chancellor, Trinity University, Professor C O O Kolawole responded with a banter: "The moment I first set eyes on you, I knew you were a harbinger of good news!"

The Vice Chancellor thereafter thanked the team for putting the University on the right path and promised that Trinity University was going to promptly address every concern raised. He further wished the team a safe journey back home.

ICAN ACCREDITS TRINITY UNIVERSITY'S ACCOUNTING DEGREE PROGRAMME

Trinity University's Accounting degree programme has received the full accreditation of The Institute of Chartered Accountants of Nigeria, ICAN, according to a letter from the office of the Registrar/Chief Executive of the accounting body. The letter reads, "we are pleased to inform you that the Council of the Institute has approved full accreditation of the B.Sc. Accounting programme of your university.

The accreditation is for the duration of four academic sessions with effect from 2022/2023 to 2024/2025."

... "We are thrilled," says Trinity University's Vice Chancellor

Responding to the development, the acting Vice Chancellor of the University, Professor Clement Olusegun Olaniran Kolawole says, "We are thrilled to receive this accreditation from ICAN.

It is a testament to the quality of our programmes, and to the hard-work and dedication of our faculty and staff, in providing high-quality education to our students."

...Accreditation well deserved -
Acting Dean of Faculty

In her comments, the acting Dean, Faculty of Arts, Management and Social Sciences, Dr. Folakemi Ohunakin, said that the accreditation was a desirable outcome, and well deserved by the University, considering the investment in human, material and time resources to make sure that the total person is produced in Trinity University.

...ICAN accreditation offers a bundle of benefits - Olowosegun

Dr. Oladipo Olowosegun of the Accounting Department of the University, analyzing the implication, says: "It will enable graduates of the University to receive exemptions from ICAN foundation exams, and start their chartered process from the skills stage, rather than from the foundation stage. Another benefit is that Trinity students could apply for student membership of the body. They are also eligible to enter into other programmes and competitions organized by the accounting body, among other benefits."

TU Student Wins Lagos Commodities and Futures Exchange (LCFE) Prize

"I HAD ONLY THREE DAYS TO PREPARE, AND I WON!"
- OWODUNNI

Miss Maayofoluwa Owodunni, a 300-level student of Economics, Trinity University, has emerged the second-place winner in the maiden edition of the Lagos Commodities and Futures Exchange (LCFE) Essay Competition for the tertiary level, at the 3rd Annual Financial Literacy Seminar, 2023, organized by the Exchange.

The essay competition required the participants to submit entries of 3,000 words, on the topic: "Exploring the Future: Can AI Replace Human Traders in Commodities Exchange?"

For her feat, she has earned herself the LCFE certificate of outstanding performance, a one-month internship at the Exchange and a cash prize of N100,000.00 (One Hundred Thousand Naira).

In her paper, Maayofoluwa observes that artificial intelligence (AI) has led to a worldwide revolutionary change in the dynamics and operations of the commodities and exchange market. She argues, however, that AI cannot replace the human being, at least in the immediate future. Recalling how she came into the contest, Maayofoluwa said that she got to know of the competition only three days to submission deadline, through her lecturer, Mrs. Ayobola Charles, who did not only introduce her to the competition, but also encouraged and mentored her.

"I was shocked to learn that I had won the prize," the young student economist enthuses. Obviously happy, and bursting into rounds of laughter, all through the conversation, Maayofoluwa gives God all the glory for the achievement. She also appreciates Mrs. Charles who gave her the lead and the encouragement.

Mrs. Ayobola, on her part, said she was happy and elated that her student emerged a winner. She said that she was not surprised, having known Maayofoluwa as one of the best students in the class. She said that Maayofoluwa was intelligent, diligent and goes out of her way to learn. She advised other students to be diligent, hardworking and learn to exact themselves.

Beyond the Classrooms Series...

Trinity University students visit International Mail Processing Centre (IMPC), of NIPOST

Picture shows Ag. HOD, Political Science, Dr. Julius Anjorin (standing mid-row in glasses), TU students and some staff of NIPOST, during the visit.

3rd Edition - Nov. 10, 2023.

Exciting experience as TU students make excursion to Badagry Slave Museum

Badagry is historical as a key post for the export of over 500,000 African slaves across the sea, during the slave trade that lasted for more than 300 years.

Renowned for its heritage of arts, history and culture, Badagry is home to museums depicting the horror and injustice of the transatlantic slave trade.